The Science, Technology and Society Program in the College of Humanities & Social Sciences presents:

The Rolf Buchdahl Symposium on Science, Technology & Human Values

Celebrating 100 Years of Rolf Buchdahl’s Life & Legacy

April 10, 2015 from 9 am to 5:30 pm
James B. Hunt Library Auditorium, Centennial Campus, North Carolina State University

9:00 am  OPENING REMARKS:  Jeffery P. Braden, Dean, College of Humanities & Social Sciences
          Kathleen M. Vogel, Director, Science, Technology & Society Program

9:30 am  Roundtable Discussion: The Gamergate Controversy: An Examination of Gender Concerns in Video Game Design, Culture, and Practices
          •  Kara Stone, Independent Game Designer
          •  Michael Young, Professor of Computer Science, NC State
          •  Mia Consalvo, Canada Research Chair at Concordia University in Montreal, Head of the Digital Games Research Association
          •  Nicholas Taylor, Assistant Professor of Communication, NC State

11:30 am LUNCH BREAK

1:30 pm  Wastelands and Wilderness: Nuclear Lands
          •  Peter Galison, Harvard University
             Joseph Pellegrino University Professor in History of Science and Physics

3:00 pm  COFFEE BREAK

3:30 pm  Roundtable Discussion: Ethics Education and Training in Science and Engineering
          •  Ronald Kline, Professor of Science and Technology Studies and Bovay Program in the History of Engineering Ethics, Cornell University
          •  Joseph Herkert, Lincoln Associate Professor of Ethics and Technology
             Arizona State University
          •  Jennifer Kuzma, Goodnight-NC GlaxoSmithKline Foundation Distinguished Professor of Public Administration, NC State
          •  Russell Powell, Assistant Professor of Philosophy, Boston University
          •  Nisha Cavanaugh, Director, Office of Postdoctoral Affairs, Responsible Conduct of Research, NC State
          •  Daniel Vallero, Research Environmental Scientist
             U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, Research Triangle Park, NC
          •  Edward Gehringer, Associate Professor of Computer Science, NC State

5:30 pm  SYMPOSIUM ENDS

With special thanks to these co-sponsors: Buchdahl Lecture Endowment Fund; Communication, Rhetoric, & Digital Media Program; Department of Communication; Department of History; Department of Philosophy & Religious Studies; Genetic Engineering & Society Center; Interdisciplinary Studies; Kenan Institute for Engineering, Technology & Science; Science, Technology & Society Program; Triangle Institute for Security Studies; Women’s & Gender Studies Program